CosmoCaixa Barcelona, Spain

Following our two successful conferences in Barcelona, this international, 2-day, scientific symposium will be focused on the promotion of cardiovascular health through molecular biology, clinical pathophysiology and population research with the intent of reducing the public health burden that cardiovascular disease poses in developed countries, and increasingly in low- and middle-income countries as well.

The goals of this program are:

- 1) fostering a multidisciplinary dialogue among researchers and clinicians coming from academia, industry, and other parties involved in the prevention, management, and treatment of cardiovascular disease.
- 2) disseminating the symposium's proceedings to a wider public through creating high-quality dissemination materials and press coverage, which will highlight the conference discussions to the global scientific community and the general public.

The agenda will feature plenary lectures, poster and short presentations selected from submitted abstracts, panel discussions, a career development workshop, and plenty of networking breaks.

Organizer - Valentin Fuster, MD, PhD, Director of the Zena and Michael A. Wiener Cardiovascular Institute and of the Marie-Josée and Henry R Kravis Center for Cardiovascular Health at Mount Sinai Medical Center, New York; Director of Fundacion Centro Nacional de Investigaciones Cardiovasculares Carlos III (CNIC) in Madrid, Spain.
